In my opinion, the appropriate stress can be motivation for ppl but most of ppl face excess too much of stress but they do not how to release it or change it into motivation. This may cause the ppl easily think negative when they feel stress. My way to release stress is sleeping, this is because only sleepinv we can relax our brain dont think too much, when we wake up, we will have more energy to face the problem that we met. Other ways to release stress can also be jogging, listening music, reading or others, depends of your own suitable ways to release your stress.

Yes. I think stress is a motivational force. It can motivate us to do our jobs more efficiently and reach our goals. However, most people don't know how to release their stress and this make them unhappy and don't have the motivation to do their jobs. For me, my way to relieve stress is sleeping. When I feel stress, i will go for a sleep because sleeping let me don't think about my jobs and it let my brain to rest.

About this issue, not easy to say

I get the license on 17 year old lah but I know a lot of teenagers who will do as fast and furious

So, I think that maybe can practice and do the test driving on 17 year old. However, they will be a formal driver when between 19 - 20 year old. It means that they should be at least 1 year L license

From my opinion, I prefer when people are between age 19 or 20 to having their own driving license. It is because the age of 16 and 17 is too early for them to drive their own transportation on the busy road. If the age between 20 or 21 able to having driving license, I think this will increase the burden of our parents because our parents still need to help us to manage transport.

讚 · 回覆 · 3週

罗嘉诚 oh yea, you have remind me about the burden towards family to manage our transport since we already go for the work but we also can call grab or either take a bus right?

I think 18? But in my opinion, maturity is not about the age. Some adults do not follow the traffic rules too. And some people drive when they are drunk. Maybe let the teenagers practice at the neighborhood first when they get the driving license. After familiar with driving car, then let them drive on the road.
